Starting with Old Columbia, the Haxall Mansion, in 1834, Richmond College expanded rapidly. By the 1850's work was begun on the old main building, but construction was interrupted by war.

After the War, the College returned to find its buildings devastated; soon, however, work was resumed on the main building, named Ryland Hall in honor of Robert Ryland, who retired as president in 1866.

This building grew "like Topsy," with three different styles of Victorian gothic architecture over thirty years of work. It was severely damaged by fire on Christmas night, 1910.

Partly as a result of this fire and partly because Richmond was growing up around it, Richmond College in 1912 resolved to move to the West End from the old location at what was then the end of Grace Street, where it now intersects with Lombardy.

On moving to the planned campus, the College divided into Richmond College and Westhampton, all under the name of Greater Richmond College, which was soon replaced by the title "University of Richmond".

The Library—Heart of the University Spirit

Boatwright Memorial Library with its study booths, central circulation desk, and steel stacks has come a long way from the first days of Virginia Baptist Seminary in 1830.

When Robert Ryland opened the doors of that first institution in 1832, there were not more than several hundred books at the students' disposal in his private collection.

By 1840 the Seminary had become attractive to students interested in fields other than religion, so on March 4 of that year Richmond College was chartered as a liberal arts institution.

Even after the charter of 1840 there was no library to speak of, so the students took matters into their own hands. The Columbian Society was begun in September, 1841, and from the very first began to collect books to supplement the few offered by the College.

From then until 1855 six different societies were started at the College, all with the purpose of promoting literary and debating activities, all collecting books. Of these only two survived: Mu Sigma Rho (begun by a merger of Columbian and Washington), and Philologian, the newest, chartered October 12, 1855.

The societies' libraries were so important to the College that they were annually listed in the catalogue, and they usually represented about a third of the total collection.

A look at the reading habits of these students reveals some interesting facts. The catalogue of the Philologian library as of December 1, 1860 shows Napoleon out in front as the favorite reading topic. Five out of the 164 volumes of history and biography relate directly to his rule. George Washington ranked a close second.

The societies jointly sold the libraries to the College in 1883 due to the financial burden of the collection and to the fact that the College now had close to ten thousand volumes.

The libraries of the societies had fared far better than those of the College during the War Between the States. When the College closed and the societies were suspended in April, 1861, provisions had been made to take care of them independently. The College library, unlike those of the societies, was carried off by a Union officer "for safe keeping" after the fall of Richmond. Needless to say, this honorable Yankee gentleman never returned the books; only a few ever found their way back to the shelves. In fact there were less than a thousand at war's end in the shattered buildings of the College, which were used as a barracks for Negro troops.

After the war as before, the library, at one time less than a thousand volumes, was stored in a small room barely large enough to hold them; the society libraries were much more spacious.

It was not until the session of 1882-83, which saw the opening of Jeter Memorial Hall, that there was adequate space for the library, now enlarged by the addition of the society collections.

The library hall that was opened then was a marvel of its day; busts of Franklin and Washington in bronze graced the aisles, and right in the middle of it all was a mummy.

This was a handsome room, the pride of Richmond—but at first it was opened for only a few hours per day.

Expansion in that era was the by-word; a museum was started, the first student publication saw the light of day, and fraternities invaded the former staid atmosphere. The College was going through a period of expansion until 1914; when the former West End location was too cramped and too downtown to continue, the College moved to its present location.

A magnificent new room now cut up into cubicles for the Center for Psychological Service, was opened in a building named Charles Ryland Hall in honor of the first librarian, who also was the founder of the Philologian Society.

That entire room as well as the first floor was taken up with books, and soon the library had to overflow into an adjoining building, named Robert Ryland Hall for the first president.

The College had now become the University, and the library had now become a university library. The literary societies were again called upon to sacrifice for the sake of the library.

When Robert Ryland Hall had been built, space on the third floor had been given for two literary society halls; now the space was needed for stacks and was taken over. Later these same rooms were converted into classrooms.

But even with an extra floor the place became crowded, and new space was needed. It was the realization of a long-sought goal when, on the 125th anniversary of the founding of Richmond College in 1955, the University of Richmond dedicated Boatwright Memorial Library.

This building now houses over 140,000 volumes, either in stacks or in other libraries at more convenient locations for specialized interests. Also offered are microfilms, newspapers and magazines.

In a wing of Boatwright Library is the Virginia Baptist Historical Society, with one of the finest collections of church history in the nation.

Elsewhere in the University and catalogued at Boatwright Library are the libraries of chemistry, physics, biology, law, and Westhampton.

EDWARD BAPTIST

Scholar, planter, and preacher Edward Baptist supplied the impetus for the beginning of Richmond College when in 1830 he took several ministerial students into his home, Dunlora, in Powhatan County. The reason for this was that the Baptists of Virginia had been unsuccessful in raising funds for a seminary, and the need for trained ministers was so great that something had to be done. The informal school did so well that by 1832 funds had been raised for the purchase of a farm to house the new Seminary.

ROBERT RYLAND

President Ryland was engaged to run the new Virginia Baptist Seminary which opened on a farm north of Richmond in 1832; the plan was to have the students work for their keep, but it did not work out so the plan was abandoned in 1834. In that year the "old campus" at Grace and Lombardy was established. In 1840 the curriculum of the Seminary was broadened to the liberal arts with the coming of a new charter for "Richmond College" in that year. Degrees, however, were not given until 1849.

TIBERIUS GRACCHUS JONES

In 1866 the college reopened to find nothing but devastation left from the War Between the States. President Ryland had retired; the new president was Tiberius Gracchus Jones, who served during the period of Reconstruction. A new system of independent professors promoted more intellectual freedom, compulsory religious observance was abolished, and a "messing system" was initiated for the benefit of families impoverished by the war. Under this plan, students could pay their tuition, room, and board bills in groceries. With the resignation of Tiberius Gracchus Jones in 1869, the office of president was abolished.

FREDERICK WILLIAM BOATWRIGHT

The Board of Trustees in 1895 resolved to take the government of the college out of the hands of the Chairman of the Faculty. The office of president was re-created, and twenty-six-year-old Frederick William Boatwright was appointed to fill it. Boatwright ran the affairs of the school as president until 1946 and as chancellor from 1946 until his death in 1951. Through his efforts a new campus was purchased, Westhampton College established, and the University of Richmond created by the merger of Richmond College, Westhampton College, and the T. C. Williams School of Law.

Alma Mater bids Godspeed to the Class of 1961 which moves out upon a world that is sorely in need of dedicated leadership. May the same qualities that won for you your coveted degree enable you to build a useful and satisfying career.

As breadwinner or home maker, may you be guided by the Christian precepts of the University, just as the University has been guided by them in the years that have passed since her humble beginning in 1830. That the University has grown in resources and in influence through the years is due in large measure to the devotion of her sons and daughters.

Alma Mater is confident that in the difficult years ahead you will meet the challenge with a full measure of confidence and faith. Nobly will you measure up to the responsibility that is yours.

Treasurer

Dr. Charles H. Wheeler, III became treasurer of the University on the first day of 1942, having previously served as professor in the mathematics department. The campus and school have shown continual improvement and expansion under his administration.

The Office of the Treasurer transacts all business matters of the University. These duties include collection of fees, payment of bills, maintenance of buildings and grounds and the investment of University funds.

Dr. Wheeler is on the Board of Publications and the Scholarship Committee. The WEB Staff would like to pay a special tribute to Dr. Wheeler this year for his advice and help in many matters.

The University is indebted to Dr. Wheeler and his staff for their commendable contributions in bringing our University to the outstanding position it now commands.

University Deans

The nine deans at the University of Richmond are working continuously to improve academic and social standards as the school changes.

Dr. Marguerite Roberts, head of the undergraduate division at Westhampton, advises students in personal as well as scholastic problems. Miss Elizabeth Kasper, newly appointed Dean of Students, is in charge of social activities. An alumnus, Dean Clarence J. Gray, is Dean of Students of Richmond College. After twenty-seven years of service in the biology department, Dr. Robert F. Smart became Dean of Richmond College.

Dr. Edward F. Overton, a Richmond College alumnus, is Dean of the Summer School and also chairman of the Department of Education. Dr. William T. Muse served sixteen years on the University Faculty before becoming Dean of the Law School. Dr. Benjamin J. Holtzclaw serves as Dean of the Graduate School. Dr. David W. Robbins is Dean of the Business School, which is a rapidly expanding department of the University. Dr. Mel L. Greenhut is the Associate Dean of the Business School. Functioning as a unit the nine deans are the heart of the university.

In Memoriam

Miss Isabel Harris

We dedicate this moment of reverence to Miss Isabel Harris, Westhampton's beloved Mathematics Professor, who passed away in October of 1960. She was a member of a family closely associated since 1866 with the University of Richmond, which she loved even after her retirement from teaching in June of 1949. Her honors are many, and her outstanding achievement made the University proud to have her as a faculty member.

One of her former students stated at a banquet in her honor that Miss Harris "always showed a sincere concern for our problems and a genuine joy for our successes."

Dr. Robert E. Loving

Dr. Robert E. Loving, University of Richmond's "Sage of Fluvanna", his beloved native county, has been a great inspiration to the University through his work as professor in the Department of Physics. His death in August of 1960 was mourned by all who knew him.

He graduated with honors from Richmond College in 1896 and joined the faculty here in 1908 after completing his doctorate at Johns Hopkins University. He served faithfully as teacher and friend for 40 years before his retirement in 1949. The memory of Dr. Loving will remain alive at the University of Richmond.

In 1830 the Virginia Baptist General Association resolved it expedient to form an Education Society for the improvement of the ministry. The immediate outcome of this resolution was not the establishment of a school, but the adoption of a plan of accepting approved candidates for the ministry and placing them in the homes of ministers who were qualified to give them instruction. This Society accepted 13 students nine of whom were assigned to Elder Edward Baptist and 4 to Elder Eli Ball. Two years later, in 1832, the "Virginia Baptist Seminary" was founded, with Rev. Robert Ryland as principal. The Seminary was located on a farm to the north of Richmond, just beyond what is now Bryan Park. The farm contained a residence and some out-buildings on a tract of about two hundred acres of land, and was purchased at a cost of four thousand dollars.

Class instruction began on July 4, 1832, with 14 students who were preparing for ministry. For these students there was no charge for board or tuition, since each student was required to work three hours a day on the farm.

It was not long, however, before pay students were admitted, the number of students increased, and additional teachers employed. The farm proved to operate at a loss, and for this reason was sold in 1834. In December of that year the school was moved to the location in the western suburbs of the city of Richmond, the Haxall Mansion, which was to be the home of the Seminary and subsequently of Richmond College for the next 80 years.

Throughout the entire life of the Seminary up to the time when Richmond College supplanted it, the chief emphasis was on ministerial education. But other students, even those of no church affiliations whatever, were welcomed to the full privileges of the school. Rev. Robert Ryland was clearly of the opinion that while general education and theological training were both important as training for the ministry, if a choice between the two had to be made, the preference should be given to the former as the basis for theological studies which should be continued through life.

Because the Society was not incorporated and therefore, under the laws of

EDWARD BAPTIST
Founder of Dunlora Academy

Virginia, could not hold property, it was decided to convert the Seminary into a liberal arts college, and to make application to the Virginia General Assembly for a charter. This purpose was carried out, and the institution, under the name Richmond College, was duly chartered by the General Assembly on March 4, 1840.

In January, 1843, "grounds and buildings worth twenty thousand dollars, a library of seven hundred volumes, three teachers at salaries of nine hundred dollars, six hundred dollars, and five hundred dollars, and sixty-eight students . . . were transferred . . . to the control of the legally incorporated Trustees of Richmond College."

In 1861 the South became engulfed in a war which was destined to overturn its entire economic and social structure. The College was completely suspended, the entire endowment, library, scientific equipment were swept away, and nothing was left but the campus and a few badly defaced buildings. The main building had been used first as a hospital by the Confederate soldiers and then as barracks by the Federal troops.

Various steps were taken promptly to enlarge the material equipment of the College and to increase the endowment. The College set out on its renewed life with Tiberius Gracchus Jones as its President. Slowly but surely stability and strength came until by the end of this third of the century the perpetuity of the college was assured. To the original four-story edifice that faces Broad Street a central structure was first added. This building was enlarged and completed when the South Wing was added where the library and a museum found a local habitation. In its final form this whole structure had the shape of a letter H. Two cottages, one named "DeLand" for its donor, soon increased the number of dormitories. Soon more ground was bought for more buildings and larger campus. More room for professors and their families on the campus came when a row of dwellings facing on Lombardy Street was built.

The fraternities entered college life at this period. These secret organizations were not favored by many patrons of the College, but on the whole they were helpful, being social, though not convivial. At first there were only three of these Clubs, Kappa Alpha, Beta Theta Pi, and Phi Delta Theta.

In 1895 F. W. Boatwright was elected President of Richmond College. He began at once a campaign for money for the erection of a Science Building. This was completed and paid for by 1898.

In 1914 the Women's College of Richmond transferred its property to Richmond College. In the fall of that year the new site was occupied and the institution was opened for work. In 1918 the U. S. Government took over the new campus and buildings for hospital purposes and the institution had to move back to the old campus for the session of 1918-1919. Then came the Armistice and a return to the campus for the launching of a career which has been unbrokenly successful ever since.

As Richmond College had been steadily expanding in the scope of its instruction, as well as its grounds, buildings, equipment, and the library, it was decided to change the name from Richmond College to "University of Richmond." The University now comprises: (1) Richmond College; (2) the T. C. Williams School of Law; (3) Westhampton College; (4) the School of Business Administration, and (5) the Summer School, for both men and women.

The classes at Westhampton and the University of Richmond have grown with the school and have grown together. At Westhampton, the Odd-Even tradition has become an integral part of college life. In September a freshman meets her big sister, who is a member of the junior class. The freshman and junior classes join together in all events. The first thing a new student must learn to contend with is the sophomore class during "ratting." The junior class members come to their assistance, however, and the freshmen have a chance to retaliate on the last day of ratting. As the year passes, the big and little sisters become better acquainted. There are several Big-Little Sister parties during the year. An important part of the relationship concerns intramurals. The Odd Team opposes the Even Team in each of the sports in its season. Also each class participates individually and the class with the highest member of points receives a trophy at the end of the year.

Perhaps more hard work and teamwork go into the Song Contest than any other event. For two weeks each class practices almost every day, and on the appointed night everyone waits with bated breath until the decision is announced. This is the one event in which everyone participates. At this time the classes are more integrated and there is a strong group feeling of participation.

On May Day, the freshmen have their traditional lantern parade.

The climax of the year comes with the Daisy Chain, when the seniors give their little sisters their satin pillows, and the sophomores present the seniors with a bracelet symbolizing their two year relationship. The next year, as juniors, they receive their little sisters, and so the cycle continues.

The big-little sister tradition here at Westhampton has fostered a warmth of feeling that cannot be found in every college. There is a strong loyalty tying together the classes in a bond of true comradeship as well as competitiveness.

Although the classes at the University of Richmond do not have the same traditional kinship as those at Westhampton, each class becomes acquainted and learns to act as a unified group as it undergoes "ratting" in September. Though this period is not a wholly pleasant one, it serves a purpose in bringing together the members of the freshman class.

The University of Richmond has proudly watched her classes as they graduated and passed back into the "civilian" life. In return for the knowledge and good times she has given them, she has the joy of seeing her graduates do well in every field. It is with especial pride that she welcomes their children and grandchildren, for they are carrying on the tradition of scholarship and integrity that have graced her hallowed halls.

It is customary for each graduating class to present the University with a gift for remembrance. Through these landmarks we remember with pride and gratitude the members of each class. For the college and college life are no more than the least member, and each class has marked a step forward in contributing to the University life and culture.

View of Old Campus

Science Quadrangle

Thomas Hall

Trolleys ran out to the present campus from downtown for nearly half a century, at first under the Westhampton Park Railway Company, which eventually merged into what is now the Virginia Electric and Power Company.

The original tracks circled around the dance hall (where the library now stands) overlooking the lake; they were moved after Richmond College acquired the campus in 1913. After that time, the cars turned around in a loop about where the bus line ends now at the foot of Boatwright Drive.

The trolley line came out Grove Avenue to the end, near where Malvern crosses it now, and turned at Three Chopt Road, paralleling the road just to the east, then crossing it and following the present line of College Drive. The latter street is a creation of the roadbed, put in later.

Finally it entered the campus, which in those days was an amusement park. According to Dr. McDanel there seems to be a question as to whether or not it still is.

Traces of the old roadbed may be seen between the bus stop and the T. C. Williams School of Law building, and just below the grade of College Drive, as well as on Three Chopt Road south of the intersection with College.

Originally the present campus was on the farm of Benjamin Green, who created University Lake as a mill pond.

Thomas Hall was one of the two original college dormitories on the Richmond College side of the lake. It and Jeter Hall derive their names from the Art Hall and library respectively on the old campus.

Jeter Hall was named for Jeremiah Bell Jeter, one of the prime movers in the founding of Richmond College. At the old campus, the name was given to a section of the main building for which memorial funds were raised in the 1870's.

Principal among those who helped raise the money for the old Jeter memorial was James Thomas, Jr., a leading Richmond tobacconist and devout Baptist. Thomas served as chairman of the Board of Trustees until his death; he succeeded Dr. Jeter in that position.

Fittingly, when Jeter Hall on the old campus was completed by the addition of an art hall above the library, it was named for James Thomas, Jr., who left the bulk of his estate to the College.

At first, the dormitories were named simply "A" and "B", but finally the names of these two trustees were transferred to them and have remained ever since.

Incidentally, the students had to furnish their own rooms in the new dormitories when they opened September 17, 1914!

Trolley Roundtable

Westhampton College

The story of Westhampton begins in 1914, when Miss May Keller became the first Dean of Westhampton College. In that year the construction of North Court was completed, and Westhampton opened its doors to 85 girls, 38 of whom were resident students.

These early years in the life of the college include several dates of historical significance. In 1915, for example, "Henry," Dean Keller's Ford, became the first car on the Westhampton campus. This was also the era of the Black Maria, a long, mule-drawn car which met the trolley bringing the day students from town and hauled these Westhampton ladies across the lake and up the hill to class every morning.

In the period following the Civil War many excellent private schools had been established in Richmond. Mr. John H. Powell's school, the Richmond Female Seminary, was probably the most fashionable. Formed in 1873, the Seminary enrolled both boarders and day students. Its aim was to give to young ladies the educational advantages which men received in college. In addition to the usual academic classes, chemistry and philosophy were offered, as well as an excellent course in music. Soon after the establishment of Westhampton as Richmond College's affiliate women's institution, the Richmond Female Seminary united with her, the two schools becoming one under the name of Westhampton College. Then, in 1921, Westhampton College, Richmond College, and the T. C. Williams School of Law merged to form the University of Richmond.

From its early beginnings as a single building, Westhampton has grown considerably to meet the demands of an up-to-date college. In 1946 the new gymnasium, Keller Hall, was dedicated. The following year a second dormitory, South Court, was completed to provide for the rapidly increasing enrollment of Westhampton, which has today grown to 500 girls. At the present time there are plans for the construction of a new indoor swimming pool which will greatly enhance the campus and add to the facilities of the physical education department.

The spirit of Westhampton is beautifully illustrated by the example of her patriotism during World War I. In 1918 Westhampton's campus was turned over to the Red Cross. Wounded soldiers were being sent by rail to Richmond to be hospitalized and rehabilitated. The college campus, conveniently situated for the American Red Cross, was willingly evacuated by students and faculty, and North Court was converted to a war hospital.

With the use of a single truck, Westhampton moved bag and baggage to the St. Luke's Hospital building, which became a temporary dormitory and classrooms during the early winter months of 1918. Westhampton spirit persisted, even in spite of the terrible influenza epidemic which swept Richmond and caused thirty girls to be quarantined at school.

Before the close of the winter, medical personnel were returning from overseas duty, and Westhampton students were forced to move from the hospital building to private homes scattered along Franklin Street. For the remaining months of the school year, classes met over a downtown auto shop, and chapel was held in the Masonic lodge room. By September of 1919, however, Westhampton was installed once again in the familiar building atop the lake path; her school spirit had withstood a difficult test, and her patriotic zeal had demonstrated its intensity.

1921 marks the merger of Westhampton College, Richmond College, and the T. C. Williams School of Law to form the University of Richmond.

Every class for the past 47 years has contributed its share to Westhampton tradition—our heritage of customs which adds meaning to college life. Students of 1914 initiated the choosing of class birthdays. The Odd-Even tradition sprang up soon after as a result of competition in sports events. Also in 1914 was held the first Halloween Party. The evening included one feature, however, which has not survived to the present day. In the basement of North Court the Sophomores found the mummy of Thiamoniet, which had been presented to the school as a gift. The wrapped body was removed from its case and laid in state in the Blue Room, where Freshmen were brought to view it by the eerie glow of candlelight.

But the finest tradition at Westhampton is that of scholarship—a sincere desire to learn stimulated by an atmosphere of intellectual curiosity. Westhampton was founded with the understanding that its standards would be as high as those of the best women's colleges in the East. Through the efforts of students, faculty and administration, this goal of achievement has been maintained and has become a coveted ideal which every girl strives to uphold.

The School of Business

GEORGE M. MODLIN
Director
Evening School of Business Administration—1938

Our beginning was humble and our growth an ever moving force directed toward higher objectives and the realization of our ideals. The School of Business Administration was born and nurtured in Richmond College. It began in the fall of 1920 as the Department of Economics, and the first degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration was awarded in the spring of 1923.

By 1920 it had become possible for a student entering Richmond College to major in subjects related to Business Administration, for the school now offered a B.S. degree in Business Administration.

In 1924 a new era in Business training was opened when the University of Richmond announced a new school and opened the Evening School of Business Administration in the old Richmond College building at Grace and Lombardy streets.

Professor George M. Modlin, now president of the University, became director of the Evening School of Business Administration and head of the Department of Economics and Applied Economics in 1938. Under his vigorous and farsighted management a tremendous advancement was made by these schools. According to Dr. Boatwright, Dr. Modlin's election to presidency in 1946 was largely as a result of his accomplishments in these schools.

The business community of Richmond heralded this beginning and requested that more class offerings in the field of business be made. As a result, in 1924 the Evening School of Business Administration was organized as a separate division of the University of Richmond.

The Department of Economics and the Evening School of Business Administration remained separate until 1949 when they were united to form the School of Business Administration, which is now one of the six major divisions of the University of Richmond.

The objective of the School of Business Administration is to provide education at the college level in the theory and practice of business management taught by men of high scholarship and practical experience in business techniques within an atmosphere of Christian idealism and in the fundamental belief that free enterprise is a basic American institution.

Our objectives and ideals are aimed high, and in support of these ideals the Board of Trustees of the University of Richmond, at their meeting in February of 1960, authorized the construction of a new business administration building. Eight months later the contract for construction was awarded and work began with the expectation of completing the new structure in the fall of 1961. It is in this new building which you see pictured here that we, the students and faculty, plan to move ever forward toward the fulfillment of our objectives and the achievement of our ideals.

Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi was founded October 5, 1904 at the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance at New York University. The objectives of Alpha Kappa Psi are to further the individual welfare of its members; to foster scientific research in the fields of commerce, accounts, and finance; to educate the public and demand higher ideals therein; and to promote and advance in institutions of college courses leading to degree in business administration.

The Delta Zeta Chapter of the School of Business Administration, the 92nd chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi Fraternity, was chartered on the University of Richmond campus in May, 1955. Through contacts with business leaders, field trips, discussion groups, and research projects the formal training of the fraternity men is enriched.

The Mid-East Regional Conference, held November 18-19, 1960, at the William Byrd Hotel proved to be one of the finest conferences in the history of the region. The highlight of the week-end was a stimulating talk by the Alpha Kappa Psi's national president L. Russell Jordan. Other activities included fall picnic, dinner meetings, field trip and a spring outing.

Membership requirements include an academic average of at least a C, matriculation in the School of Business, approval by 100% of the membership.

T. C. Williams School of Law

DR. GREGORY
First Dean of School of Law

In 1870, the trustees of Richmond College established a law school "to implant the great and guiding principles of jurisprudence, and to impart a philosophic habit of thought." The law school at this time was little more than a department of Richmond College. Four years later the law school's struggles ended, only to be followed by a second five-year attempt three years later.

In 1890 the law school was put on a more firm foundation in memory of T. C. Williams. His family donated twenty-five thousand dollars as the nucleus of an endowment for the law school.

In its early days the law school occupied a nearby building rather than "Columbia."

In 1914 the entire University, including the law school, moved out to the Westhampton Campus, where the law school occupied the ground floor of Charles H. Ryland Hall. In 1918 the entire school moved back to the "Columbia" campus, as the government took over the Westhampton buildings and grounds for a hospital.

When the rest of the University moved back to Westhampton a year later, the law school stayed behind, remaining at the "Columbia" for more than thirty years.

An important milestone in the history of the University of Richmond was reached October 15, 1954, when the new building, housing the complete T. C. Williams School of Law, was formally dedicated. Located on the right of the path leading from the bus stop on Campus Drive to the Administration Building, the building was made possible by a generous bequest to the Law School from the late A. D. Williams, son of T. C. Williams for whom the school was named in 1890.

The building provided all the instructional facilities needed by a modern law school. It includes a reading room seating two hundred, four classrooms, three seminar rooms, and a modern courtroom. The pride of the school, the courtroom, accommodates two hundred persons, and is equipped with a bench for three judges, a jury box, witness stand, etc.

The location of the Law School in proximity to the other colleges of the University certainly strengthened its position as well as reinforcing the other divisions of the University. Future law students will be studying in an atmosphere of University activity and culture.

TOM WORD
President, Student Government

Student Government

The Law School Student Bar, which is comprised of the entire Law School student body, was organized, and its constitution was drawn for the purpose of inculcating into its membership a cognition of individual honor and integrity as intrinsic rudiments of the legal profession.

This organization seeks to effect its purpose through the medium of a governing body which consists of three branches: the executive, legislative, and judicial.

The President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer, being the officers of the executive branch, are elected to office by an annual general election which is held in the Spring.

In consideration of the fact that the Student Bar is separated into three judicial circuits, it is represented in the council, which functions as the legislative branch of the governing body.

The Judicial branch of this governing body is made up by the Honor Court. It is the duty of the court to try all cases involving violations of the Canons of Student Ethics and to declare unconstitutional all laws passed by the council found to be repugnant to the Constitution of the Student Bar.

The McNeill Law Society, the actively-functioning honorary society of the University of Richmond Law School, was organized in 1933 and named in honor of Dr. Walter Scott McNeill. The society's aims are to encourage scholarship by stimulating a greater interest in the study of both theoretical and practical law, and to foster a well-founded pride on the part of the student in his law school and in the legal profession.

Membership is based on high scholastic achievement and ability in legal research, and demeanor in extracurricular activities. The reading of original papers on recent decisions and topics of interest, the argument of moot cases, and addresses by various members of the Bench and Bar are included in the regular monthly meetings of the society.

and the Business School, and marked another "first" since first year law students had always previously served as jurors.

Organizations

Student Activity Building

Literary societies came to the Richmond campus far in advance of all other organizations.

First was the Columbian Society, which began in September, 1841.

That was just one academic year after the chartering of Richmond College as a liberal arts institution on March 4, 1840.

The Columbian Society evidently took its name from the first home of the new college, Old Columbia, formerly the Haxall Mansion and now at the corner of Grace and Lombardy streets.

In those simpler times, all college social life was centered in the societies. Once or twice a year a celebration was held and at other times the societies represented the school at gala occasions in Richmond.

Weekly meetings were held in sumptuously-furnished halls for debate, declamation, and the reading of written journals.

Many of these journals survive in manuscript at the Virginia Baptist Historical Society library.

The Columbians' journal was the Observer, which was short-lived. Also of ephemeral duration were the Franklin Society and the Washington Society. Franklin appears to have lasted during the year 1842, but the Washington Society of 1844 merged with the Columbians in 1846 to form Mu Sigma Rho.

This latter organization appears to hold the longevity record for Richmond College organizations, finally expiring in 1957, just 111 years after the merger.

"Mu Sig," as it was called, had competition from the Concord Society in 1847 and from the Dardalian Society in 1851, but there was no real rivalry—the heart of the literary society movement—until 1855.

On October 12, 1855, the faculty of Richmond College chartered the Philologist literary society. This organization is now the oldest student organization at the University.

Chapel Bridge

Each society had its own journal, the Mu Sigs with their Star and the Philologists with the Classic Gem. These journals are important in the history of the University because they eventually gave birth to student publications.

Another contribution of the societies to Richmond College was the library. Before there was a real collection of value at the College library, members of the societies had access to comprehensive collections. Many of these collections are now owned by the Boatwright Library, some of the books still bearing a society book plate.

The Columbian library was started in 1844-45 and the Philologist in 1856. By 1877 there were two thousands books in the two libraries. In 1883 they were sold to the College.

Another project of the societies was the foundation of the Richmond College Museum.

With the Museum came its most famous occupant, Princess Thiamoninet.

She is a mummy.

Not just any mummy—she was the first exhibited commercially in the United States and was once the property of not only the Viceroy of Egypt but also the Prince of Wales, who had a surplus of mummified courtiers—ancient and modern—and gave Thiamoninet to his enterprising American interpreter. This man promptly sold it to a member of the Richmond College faculty, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, who was in Egypt soon after the Prince of Wales.

She was first exhibited at the Centennial in Philadelphia, 1876, by Cook's Tours, to ballyhoo Egyptian tourism.

Then she received a rollicking reception at Richmond when she arrived. She is now in Maryland Hall museum.

Organizations and Honoraries

Richmond College

EMORY D. SHIVER, President

Every student who enters the University of Richmond becomes a member of the Richmond College Student Government Association. The purpose of this organization is to function as the supreme instrument of government in regulating the affairs of the students.

In return, the student is expected to cooperate with his fellow students by taking an active interest in the association, and by helping to encourage and uphold high standards of honor in all phases of campus life.

The organization of the Student Government is modeled after that of the national government: executive, legislative, and judiciary.

The executive branch is headed by the president and includes the other officers of the association.

The Senate and the House of Representatives form the legislative branches in the organization. The upper house has as its duty the handling of all legislative affairs connected with student government and the budgeting of the Student Activities Fee to various campus organizations. The lower house, having almost complete representation from all aspects of campus life, is in a position to work, not only as a unifying body, but as one that is able to formulate and execute plans to improve the welfare of the student.

The Honor Council, established in 1933 as the judicial branch, forms the third part, handling all questions of honor.

The All-Campus Party and the Student Party are the two political parties that function primarily for the purpose of nominating candidates for the elections held by the Student Government.

When Westhampton College was first opened in September, 1914, the College Government Association was established. Its president, Celeste Anderson (O'Flaherty), and the dormitory president, Louise Reames (Hundley), presided over the Honor System, the College Government organization, and the Residence Council. The original organization has been revised through the years to meet the needs of a student body which has grown from eighty-two to six hundred. The Westhampton College Student Government, with its honor system, is prized by the student body as its choice heritage.

ROBERT MARSHALL
President

The School of Business Administration has been engaged in a growing process since 1920. At that time it was the economics department of Richmond College. The combining of this department and the evening school resulted in the present division of the University of Richmond. Today with its own dean and student government, the School of Business Administration is witnessing further enlargement, this time in a physical sense.

The Student Government of the School of Business Administration counts every full-time student as a member. It was established by the students as a self-governing organization. Its purpose is to represent and further the best interests of the student body and the entire school. A constant effort is made to bring about cooperation and efficiency among the different student organizations.

The Honor System in the school is upheld by the Student Government of the School of Business Administration. It requires that all men shall act honorably in all the relations of student life.

The guiding principles of the Association, its component bodies, and its individual members has been honor. All its actions are motivated by the spirit of personal responsibility and individual integrity which are the recognized fundamentals of character to be found in the School of Business Administration.

The school annual, originally called The Spider, originated in 1897. It made its appearance for three years before succumbing. During that time it was in the form of a sketchbook of about half the size of the present WEB. In 1905, The Spider reappeared. It was then approximately the same size it is now. Since 1921, the yearbook has been known as THE WEB, and has not changed considerably in size or appearance during that time, though the make-up varies each year.

The Messenger

Fall 1960

*But she must convey
That to which she has Responded....*

Robert Fife—Editor-in-chief, Nancy Carmack—Westhampton Editor.

Frank Hanenkrat, Mary Catherine Sellers, Robert Hobbs.

The first student publication at Richmond College was the College Mercury, printed by Hugh C. Smith on a small hand press in his dormitory room.

The Mercury ran only two issues, for November and December, 1875. In the latter month, it became obvious that the little four-page, postcard-size paper was inadequate to the interest that had been generated.

So, in December, 1875, Smith and a group of his fellow Philologists established a company to publish the Monthly Musings for January, 1876.

This new paper, with larger pages and a newspaper format, was self-supporting for three years, but was killed by the fact that college students soon move on; there were not enough of the founders still in college to keep the paper going.

Thus, in 1878, the Musings company turned over its assets to the literary societies, who continued the paper for some time. Then they changed it to the Messenger with a format surprisingly like the magazine's present.

Spider Handbook

The Spider Handbook is the bible of the incoming "rats" at Richmond College each year. Published as a guide to campus living, it contains a map of the campus, rules for behavior expected of the "rats", and a brief description of campus organizations and activities.

The Handbooks

Westhampton Handbook

Presented by the College Government Association, the Westhampton Handbook is a guide to answering any questions a newcomer might have about Westhampton College. Within its pages are described rules, regulations and traditions which are a vital part of college life at Westhampton. Co-editors for 1960 were Doralee Forsythe and Martha Hinkle.

Organizations

The first organizations on campus were the literary societies, the Columbian, Mu Sigma Rho, and the Philologian, whose activities at that time extended somewhat beyond the literary fields. In 1878 Mu Sigma Rho and the Philologians decided to have a football match in order to determine who should compose a team for intercollegiate competition. This was the beginning of competitive football at the University of Richmond.

Before the advent of fraternities on campus there were so-called "secret societies," which were somewhat frowned upon. The fraternities when they came, however, were received with enthusiasm because they helped solve an acute housing problem. These organizations provided more social life for the boys, as well as a place for them to stay.

Westhampton never had sororities for any length of time. The girls were so closely knit to begin with, it was felt that the introduction of selective groups would divide them into factions. The Young Women's Christian Association gained a strong foothold on the Westhampton Campus, for, besides its service projects, it gave access to a social outlet which often was a joint affair with the Young Men's Christian Association of the University of Richmond.

Being primarily a school founded with religious purposes in mind, although it was very definitely a liberal arts college, the denominational organizations have played a large part in college life at the University of Richmond. The Baptist group, to be sure, boasted of the largest amount of members, but did not by any means surpass the other organizations in energy and cohesiveness. The groups have interacted well with one another through their years on campus. Each one is a member of the Religious Activities Council, the representative coordinating group of the denominational groups on campus. This body is responsible for the planning of Religious Emphasis Week, which is an impressive example of the cooperation and goodwill maintained among the groups. The Council also sponsors the daily Evening Watch and Thursday night Vesper services.

The University Players is a special organization on campus. Devoted to the study and performance of the dramatic arts, the group has presented some very fine renderings of both classic and popular drama, contributing greatly to the cultural life of the University.

In recent years language clubs have been established in order to promote interest and learning in French, German, and Spanish. These clubs have presented projects in the romantic languages. Due to a lack of interest and participation, however, these organizations are no longer active.

The political parties at the University of Richmond have become very active. These organizations are responsible for the nomination and election of student government officials at the University. Campus interest in national politics is high and is encouraged by campus organizations. Self-government by the students is a tradition which commands much respect among the students and among college students to be recognized as worthy of taking responsibility. This is what makes men and women.

The most recent organization to be established on campus is Kale Techne, devoted to interest in the fine arts. This group, founded this year, sponsors speakers, exhibitions and trips to art galleries.

The University has many organizations which play an important part in rounding out college life. They bring out the athletic, artistic, musical, political, and religious aspects of the campus community. After a long history of change and growth, these groups continue in the tradition of forming well-rounded college students.

Chi Epsilon Society—1905

Religious Activities Council

The coordinating organization for all the different denominational groups of the campus is the Religious Activities Council. Representative members are the Baptist Student, Canterbury Club, Hillel Foundation, Newman Club, Wesley Foundation, Westminster Fellowship, Ministerial Association, The Young Men's Christian Association and The Young Women's Christian Association. The Council sponsors the daily Evening Watch services and the Vesper service. The Religious Activities Council also serves as the coordinating body for the annual Religious Emphasis Week which is one of the most impressive concrete examples of the cooperation, the goodwill, and the spirit upon which the operation is founded.

The pre-school retreat easily demonstrates the principles and ideal of a free world in action. Members from each of the groups convenes, discusses informally the problems encountered, and offers solutions for them. At this time plans are made for the coming year. This group embodies the spirit of complete sincerity, friendship, and most of all, a deep respect for the other person's faith.

Baptist Student Union

Proving fellowship and joy is an important part of each student's life; the BAPTIST STUDENT UNION endeavors to include all facets of Christian living in its yearly activities.

The program begins with a bus tour to acquaint new students with Richmond churches. Bimonthly campus meetings, a Christmas caroling party, and state BSU meetings provide meaningful gatherings. Practical experience may be gained through participation in the city missions and goodwill centers and on the many youth revival teams.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club is a rather recent addition to religious organizations on the campus. On November 26, 1946, a group of students signed a petition requesting the establishment of a club for all interested Episcopalians. Since that time a small but active group of Canterburyans have held their bimonthly meetings at St. Stephen's Church. Under the guidance of their faculty adviser Dr. Edward Peple, these students have studied, played, and worshipped together in Christian fellowship.

Hillel Foundation

The aim of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation is to offer Jewish students a religious, cultural, and social background. Its purpose was successfully carried out this year by means of an interplay of activities and contributions to the University, especially during Religious Emphasis Week.

Wesley Foundation

The Wesley Foundation, through its regular meetings, retreats, conferences, work with the Children's Home, and participation in the activities of several local churches, seeks to offer Methodist students an opportunity to further their Christian experiences during their stay in the University community.

Operating with the aid of Richmond's full-time Wesley Director, the Rev. Donald S. Stanton, the local group has made strides in spiritual growth and contribution to the Christian community.

1960-1961 season include Uncle Vanya, Carnival of Thieves, and Witness for the Prosecution. Membership is awarded by players' election on the basis of participation, interest, and ability in the dramatic arts.

Young Men's Christian Association

The Young Men's Christian Association has as its purpose the threefold aim of fostering development in spirit, mind, and body.

Through its series of programs on the theme 'A World of Ideologies' the YMCA has sought to bring to light the living issues that challenge men's minds. Meeting with the YWCA, the 'Y' on campus seeks to meet every student at both Richmond College and Westhampton College.

The annual YM-YW Orientation Week Square

Dance was followed by a Mock Election and the publishing of the Student Directory. A Christmas Party for underprivileged children, the World University Service Drive, the Talent Show and the YM-YW Picnic by the lake rounded out the year's activities.

The organization is an all compassing one, and is geared to every taste. The YMCA holds a unique place on campus and stands as a leader in campus affairs.

Young Women's Christian Association

The Westhampton College YWCA wishes to make Christian living, interest in current events and campus activities a part of the life of each student.

The 'Y' is the service organization of Westhampton College. A Christmas party for the girls at Bon Air Industrial School, teas for foreign students, YM-

YW dances, Mock Elections, and the World University Service campaign are among the activities of the 'Y' which make it a vital part of Westhampton.

Miss Seymour and Miss Rudd are the advisors for this year.

The theme for YM-YW programs is 'World of Ideologists.'

Ministerial Association

The Ministerial Association aims to unite the ministerial students in a closer relationship with each other; to deepen the spiritual life of the campus through the initiation, support, and leadership of religious activities; and to provide practical internship experience in campus projects and in local churches in preparation for the student's later work.

This year our ministerial students heard ministers, counselors, religious educators, and leaders from various seminaries. These programs were designed to give the student first-hand information on problems he will meet in his future work as pastor and preacher.

The association takes an active part in intramurals as well as numerous other extracurricular activities.

The Ministerial Association gratefully received direction and advice from its advisors Dr. L. D. Johnson, Dr. O. W. Rhodenhiser, and Mr. Hart.

members automatically become a part of the N.E.A. and the V.E.A. of which the chapter is a branch. It includes those students interested in the teaching profession and education.

Society for the Advancement of Management

The Society for the Advancement of Management is an organization whose purpose is to promote and stimulate interest in the principles of scientific management.

A student to be eligible for membership must be either a member of the junior or senior class and a candidate for the Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration, or a graduate working for a Master of Science Degree in Business Administration.

Forensic Council

From the time when first there were more than one organization on campus devoted to forensic activities, there has been the problem of intercommunication to arrange contests, and joint projects.

In 1931 the Forensic Council was established as a formal organization for this purpose. The council consists of one representative and the presiding officer of each group, in addition to a secretary-treasurer.

The personal records achieved during the year are worthy of recognition: Ed Shiver—third place persuasive speaker, Washington Invitational; Bing Garthright—third place affirmative, Jerry Becker—first place negative, Strother Smith—second place negative debater.

It was the pleasure of our team to be host to the University of New Zealand debate team on March 23.

Philologian Literary Society

The Philologian Literary Society is the oldest student organization on the University campus. It was founded in 1855 and has maintained ever since high standards of speaking and writing. Each year the society sponsors a writing contest in the Messenger, which it founded, and the presentation of an historic film. Membership in the society is conferred by election after the candidate has shown interest in speaking and writing, and has demonstrated this in an introductory essay or speech.

The club has as its purpose the development of an interest in and understanding of psychology beyond that of the classroom. This is accomplished through monthly meetings which include speakers, panel discussions, and field trips.

R. C. McDanel Historical Society

The R. C. McDanel Historical Society was founded December 12, 1955, by a group of University of Richmond students interested in furthering their knowledge of the world, past and present. Programs and activities are designed to enhance the members' understanding of all phases of history and political science.

Dr. Ralph C. McDanel, head of the Department of History and for whom the society was named, was honored in December on the society's anniversary for his 35 years with the University.

Kale Techne

Kale Techne, or beautiful arts, is a newly organized art club at the University. The organization hopes to create an interest in the fine and visual arts through lectures and exhibitions on the campus and field trips. An integration of all of the arts—creative, historical, and critical—will be emphasized.

Pending the election of officers and representative to the Fine Arts Council, Kale Techne is being led by an executive council consisting of Nancy Edwards, Sue Smith, and Carolyn Whittaker. Faculty advisors of the organization are Mrs. Jewett Campbell and Miss Martha Caldwell, with Miss Pauline Turnbull as honorary advisor.

The University Choir

The University Choir marked its seventh year with its most ambitious program of activities to date. In addition to two concerts with the Richmond Symphony Orchestra, the choir toured to New York, where they gave the New York premier of THE BETRAYAL, a new sacred work by the young American composer, David Kraehenbuehl, and had a recording session at Radio City for the NBC radio network program "Great Choirs of America," on which they have been heard frequently. In addition to all of this, the choir sang in churches in the Tidewater area and presented an evening of choral music at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C., on that institution's highly regarded Sunday Evening Concert Series. They also participated in the annual Spring Concert, and published their annual LP record.

Men's Glee Club

The University of Richmond Men's Glee Club, one of the most active organizations on our campus, had another very successful year under the direction of Mr. James Erb.

During the year, the Glee Club sang its widely varied repertoire at several women's colleges in the state, including Stratford and Averett Colleges in Danville and Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg. Other concerts included an evening in Portsmouth, Virginia, a television broadcast and a concert with the Richmond Symphony, the annual Spring Concert on campus, and, for the first time in many years, were part of the Coronation Ceremony on Westhampton College's May Day. A recording by the Glee Club was also heard this year on the NBC radio network program, "Great Choirs of America."

Officers of the Glee Club were: Tom Summerell, President; Wesley Young, Vice-President; Don Searce, Secretary; Fritz McCormick, Treasurer; Cliff Attkisson, Business Manager; Jack Cosby, Property Manager; Bob Perkins and Larry Bress, Librarians; Bill Dant, Tom Clarke, Moultrie Lanier, and Ted Hyneck, Section Leaders. Under the direction of Mr. James Erb, the Glee Club sang two Christmas programs with the Randolph-Macon Men's College Glee Club, a television broadcast and a concert with the Richmond Symphony, and two joint concerts with the Washington and Lee Glee Club in Lexington and in Richmond. In addition, the 50 voice organization sang frequently in Convocation, and finished the year with a Spring Concert in the Chapel.

Officers were: Becky Powell, President; Ann Mason, Vice-President; Beth Stafford, Secretary; Marty Solley, Treasurer; Nancy Wickers and Donna Houff, Librarians; Marty Goding, Business Manager; and Ann Cosby, Accompanist, assisted by Marilyn McIntire.

The Concert Band, the largest and most important group, has played concerts on the campus, in the city, and throughout the state. The Marching Band supported the University at most of the football games and represented it at several parades. School spirit was stirred up by the Pep Band at basketball games and pep rallies. Two smaller and more recently organized groups, the Brass Ensemble and the Clarinet Quartet, have established themselves with concerts on and off the campus. The "Collegians," the Dance Band, have continued to deserve their substantial reputation.

Orchesis

Orchesis was established at Westhampton College in 1949. Since then, the group, under the direction of Mrs. Frances Wessels, has given an annual recital, which represents the first semester's work in dance, and the traditional May Day ballet during the second semester.

The aim of Orchesis is to stimulate an interest in the dance through creative and expressive performances. Any student wishing to join may participate in the regular fall tryouts. An original dance must be presented and selection is made on the basis of technique, expressiveness, and apparent potentiality. Those who are interested in dance, but do not feel qualified to compose and perform an original creation, may audition in a group technique class for Junior Orchesis, which aims to develop and prepare girls for work in the senior organization which is to come.

Honoraries

Past National President of ODK

Since 1917, when Richmond College granted a Charter to Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary debating and forensic fraternity, the students of the University of Richmond have regarded her honorary fraternities as one of the most yearned for attainments, and have constantly struggled to reach their high ideals.

Membership in Omicron Delta Kappa is one of the highest honors a student may attain. A charter was granted at Richmond College in 1921. Dr. Ralph C. McDanel, chairman of the department of history and political science, has served as national president of the society. He is one of a few members who have been awarded the fraternity's distinguished service key.

Pi Delta Epsilon, the oldest honorary journalism fraternity in the country, was established here in 1926.

Phi Beta Kappa was chartered at the University of Richmond on September 11, 1928, and on April 12, 1929, a number of members of the faculty and alumni of the University were elected to membership in association with the members of faculty who had previously been elected to membership in other colleges and universities.

Gamma Sigma Epsilon is the honorary fraternity in Chemistry. Its present advisor, Dr. W. Allen Powell, is national recorder of the fraternity.

Sigma Pi Sigma, honorary physics fraternity, was established here sometime after 1921.

Beta Theta Chapter of Beta Beta Beta was chartered in 1939 at the University of Richmond.

In 1948, the University of Richmond was granted a charter for Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary society.

In the same year Beta Mu Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta, honorary history fraternity, was started here.

Beta Xi Chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary, was started here in 1953. This is the first chapter in Virginia.

The National Society of Scabbard and Blade was started on the campus in 1953 to recognize ROTC cadet officers who show exceptional performance on the drill field.

The Alpha Society is an honorary scholastic society at the School of Business Administration.

Psi Chi is the national honorary psychology fraternity.

Theta Theta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi was set up here in 1955.

Fraternities have been a part of the life of the University of Richmond since 1870, when a Chapter of Kappa Alpha was established on the old campus at Grace and Lombardy Streets. Three years later, Phi Kappa Sigma located a chapter at Richmond College and Phi Delta Theta came in 1875. Next came Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 1884; Phi Gamma Delta, 1890; Pi Kappa Alpha, 1891; Kappa Sigma, 1898; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 1901; Theta Chi, 1915; Lambda Chi Alpha, 1918; and Phi Alpha, 1925.

In the early days of the fraternities on the old campus, most of the brotherhoods met in the dormitories. The records show, however that at least one group, Phi Gamma Delta, had rooms off campus at 400 North Lombardy Street.

In 1901 when Sigma Phi Epsilon entered Richmond College, all the fraternities used rooms in the tower of Ryland Hall.

Some ten years after the location of the University of Richmond at its present site, the University set aside a tract of land for fraternity buildings. Two groups purchased houses off campus, Delta Chi on Roselawn Road, and Phi Gamma Delta on Towana Road.

By July 1943 seven fraternities which had rooms in the dorms had to move to make way for the Navy U-12 unit. Some lived in private homes and met in classrooms. Membership in the fraternities was reduced drastically by selective service. Kappa Sigma and Phi Kappa Sigma rented their houses to the University to contain the overflow from dorms. Phi

Intramural Football

The lodge system came about after World War II. During the war Phi Gamma Delta's fraternity house was used as lodging for non-military students. Their destructiveness left the house almost beyond repair.

It was this situation that instigated the 1947 ruling of the University Board of Trustees. The ruling in essence was that all fraternity houses must be abandoned three years after the completion of the fifth lodge. The object of the ruling is to bring about equality of fraternities.

By the fall of 1959 there were no fraternity houses on the University of Richmond campus. This was the result of a flock of new lodges on Fraternity Row, but created a housing problem. Each lodge provided accommodations for only two men, while the houses had as many as twenty residents.

The University of Richmond is the only school in the United States that has instituted a lodge system after having had fraternity houses. William and Mary tried the lodge plan, but finding it unfavorable, abandoned it in 1957.

"While my Seminary and College life was, in the main pleasant, yet I encountered difficulties which no one without experience can fully appreciate. One of the pleasures was the SPORTIVENESS of the boys. At the beginning of each session they had a so called 'Secret Club', into which the greenhorns were inducted, with great solemnity, every Saturday night. After very sober preliminaries and a solemn pledge of secrecy, etc., they closed the grave exercises of the evening by inviting the novitiate to occupy the 'chair of honor' between the President and the Vice-President, and he sat down, with great complacency, on a richly embroidered chair, to find himself in a tub of cold water!

Near the close of the session they had a custom of giving the ugliest boy at College a pair of ten-dollar boots. I noticed, however, that if any student was thought to admire himself too much, they were apt to elect him to this honor. Thankful that the foolish custom of hazing had not then found its way into our colleges—and I trust never will into our Southern institutions—I confess that these pleasant-ries did some times smooth the wrinkles from my brow."

Alpha Epsilon Pi

Upsilon Rho became a colony at the University of Richmond in 1952. Two years later we were recognized as the sixtieth chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. Today there are 73 chapters and 3 colonies in the national organization.

We were the tenth fraternity to build living quarters on the University of Richmond grounds. The alumni, brothers, and pledges are very proud of our fine lodge. Mr. Nathan Krumbein, our advisor, played a large part in having the lodge constructed.

All Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity chapters are known for their high scholastic standards. Since Upsilon Rho chapter is no exception to our national requirements, we have finished in first or second place numerous times in the scholastic competition. Our academic success can be attributed to the emphasis which we place on scholarship.

A student should exercise his body as well as his mind; therefore, we participated in most of the intramural sports. Steve Miller was placed on the honorary second team of the intramural volleyball league. Our bowling team played in the Friday afternoon I.F.C. bowling league.

Sidney King was Master during the first semester of 1960-61. His mother, Mrs. Sylvia G. King, was chosen to be our sponsor.

Alpha Kappa Lambda

The Alpha Kappa Lambda colony here at the University had as its parent group Alpha Delta social fraternity.

Alpha Delta was a local fraternity founded at the University of Richmond by a group of students in 1924.

In 1960 Alpha Delta began formulating plans for a merger with National Alpha Kappa Lambda. On October 15, 1960, this merger was completed and Alpha Delta gave way to Alpha Kappa Lambda colony.

Alpha Kappa Lambda was founded at the University of California in 1914. In the few years between 1914 and 1960 AKL has made tremendous strides forward.

This colony at the University is the first movement Alpha Kappa Lambda has made below the Mason-Dixon line. Even in the few short months that the colony has been on the campus it has experienced sound growth working under the five ideals of Alpha Kappa Lambda—aggressive Christian character, high scholarship, campus leadership, loyalty to Alpha Kappa Lambda, and appreciation of self support.

The colony is hoping to receive its charter from the National Organization sometime in 1961, and is looking forward to continued progress on this campus and throughout the South.

Kappa Alpha

Kappa Alpha Order was born at Washington and Lee University on December 21, 1865. It is the only national fraternity which bases its principles upon the life of an actual person—Robert E. Lee.

Conceived and nurtured at the college of which General Robert E. Lee was then president it was but natural that it was of military type and that it embraced as its aim the cultivation of those virtues and graces which had made that great man eminent in character; in peace, in war, and after the defeat of his beloved cause.

The Order is Southern in the significant sense that its essential teaching is that its members shall cherish the ideal of character and perpetuate the ideal of the Gentleman, of which Robert E. Lee is the perfect expression.

The official colors of the Order are crimson and old gold. The official flowers are the red rose and the magnolia.

Eta chapter of Kappa Alpha Order was established at the University of Richmond in 1870. It is the oldest national fraternity on the University campus.

Social highlights of the year include the "Share Cropper's Stomp," "Alumni Ball," "Rose Ball," and "Old South Ball."

Kappa Sigma

Tracing the history of Kappa Sigma, we find its beginnings many years ago. In fact, we must go back nearly six centuries to the year 1400. In that year, at the University of Bologna, in Italy, the order was founded out of which Kappa Sigma is said to have grown. Although there is a great difference between the purposes of the organization of 1400 and that of today, the ideals and traditions are indeed similar.

Today's Kappa Sigma was founded on December 10, 1869, at the University of Virginia. It was the work of five men: William Grigsby McCormick, Frank Courtney Nicodemus, Edmund Law Rogers, George Miles Arnold, and John Covert Boyd. They are recognized by all Kappa Sigs as—"the Five Friends and Brothers." Besides these five men, there were others who were largely responsible for the growth of Kappa Sigma. Among these are Stephen Alonzo Jackson, who is recognized as the "second founder" of Kappa Sigma, and who together with Goodwin de Hulings Williams is responsible for the ritual.

Thanks to the foundation laid by these men the growth of Kappa Sigma has been constant. In the year 1876, the first Grand Conclave was held. It made provisions for a second convention two years later at which the Supreme Executive Committee was established. Expansion, which prior to the year 1880 had been limited, greatly increased. Colleges throughout the nation saw the establishment of new chapters.

In 1861, the bi-monthly Kappa Sigma news magazine, The Caduceus, appeared. The official colors were established as: scarlet, white and emerald green, and are reversed and displayed by all active chapters, now numbering more than one hundred and thirty. The original chapter at 46 East Lawn in Charlottesville, Va. is marked by a bronze plaque; a tribute to the object of the founders and to the spirited ideals of all Kappa Sigmas.

The Beta-Beta Chapter here at the University of Richmond was established on March 5, 1898, and has just completed its sixty-second successful session on this campus.

Lambda Chi Alpha

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity is the largest social fraternity in its number of chapters, having a total of one hundred and fifty chapters at institutions in the United States and Canada. It was founded in 1884.

The Richmond chapter, Alpha Chi Zeta was established on the campus in 1918. Our lodge is the first on the left as you enter Fraternity Row.

This year Lambda Chi had twenty-six men accept bids. Also the chapter won the Homecoming trophy for the best fraternity float in the parade.

This year John Vaughn from Portsmouth was selected as the outstanding freshman of last year's class by Omicron Delta Kappa. He played freshman basketball, and was president of the freshman class. He maintained an academic average of 1.4. Tommy Smith of Richmond was named Book Award Winner by Phi Beta Kappa for having a 3.0 average.

Lambda Chi Alpha boasts the largest number of fraternity men on the University faculty. Among these ten fratres in facultate is Dr. Woodford B. Hackley, senior professor of the University who began teaching here in 1924. Dr. Hackley was made recipient of the coveted Order of Merit Award this year. This award is the highest attainable from the Lambda Chi National Headquarters.

Phi Delta Theta

The Virginia Delta chapter of Phi Delta Theta was founded on this campus in the year of 1875. It is the fourth chapter in the state and the thirty-ninth internationally. It is located in the Delta North province of Phi Delta Theta. The charter was returned to the national fraternity for a brief while and returned to the University campus in the late thirties through a local fraternity, Phi Delta Omega.

The Phi Delta Theta national fraternity was founded at the University of Miami in 1848. Some of our outstanding alumni include a president of the United States, and a vice-president. Phi Delta Theta is the second largest national fraternity with some 90,000 members and 122 active chapters.

Some of the outstanding events each year in the local chapter are the South Sea Island party, the French Cabaret party, the Founders' Day banquet and the annual fraternity formal.

Phi Gamma Delta

The Fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta was started at Washington and Jefferson College in 1848 by six men immortal in the eyes of Phi Gams today. From there the fraternity has spread to include some 87 chapters which are on prominent campuses throughout the United States and Canada.

Rho Chi Chapter was started at the University of Richmond in 1890. Since that time the chapter has had a number of men to parade through its halls and assume responsible positions in the world. The chapter has occupied a rank in the top three since its establishment and has known years of such success as taking every intramural trophy except one.

The fraternity has occupied its present lodge since 1954 when it moved from the house on Towano Road which still stands and now is a resident home.

Brotherhood to the "Fijis" is noted in the motto of the fraternity, "Friendship, the sweetest influence." The development of character and close ties of friendship rank uppermost in goals of the fraternity and it is for those reasons that it rises above the social club status to fulfill the true meaning of the term "fraternity."

Phi Kappa Sigma

Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity was founded at the University of Pennsylvania in 1850. Phi chapter was founded here on January 17, 1873. Now Phi Kappa Sigma has 43 chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

One of our most significant traditions is the celebration of Founders' Day on October 19, with appropriate ceremonies to commemorate the founding of the fraternity.

For many years the Phi Kaps have been known as the "Skulls" and the chapter as the Skull House. The highlight of the social program each year is the "Skull Dance."

To be elected into membership in the chapter a candidate must be unanimously approved by the active members of the chapter. After initiation the "once a Phi Kap always a Phi Kap" principle is recognized as a traditional standard.

Phi chapter has just moved into its new lodge on New Fraternity Row.

Phi Sigma Delta

Phi Rho Chapter of Phi Sigma Delta Fraternity was established at the University of Richmond in 1925 when it was then Phi Alpha Fraternity. In 1959 Phi Alpha and Phi Sigma Delta merged and we now have 47 chapters located throughout the country. This year we have 22 active brothers and 14 pledges which makes our present chapter the largest it has ever been on this campus.

At the beginning of the year we came back to school to learn that we had won the fraternity scholarship cup for having the highest fraternity average for the school year 1959-1960, winning with an average of 1.557. We added this cup to the other three which we have already retired. About a month later, we won the award for the best lawn decoration during the Homecoming Activities.

We had a very good social year and enjoyed several joint parties with other fraternities. In athletics we fared well in all the activities in which we took part and although we didn't win every event in which we participated, the brothers had a good time and by playing as well as working together, we learned more about and could practice what we knew about brotherhood.

As one can see from the above description of our activities, we are not only interested in giving a boy a good social program but we are very much interested in scholarship and in taking an active part in all phases of university life.

Pi Kappa Alpha

On Sunday evening, March 1, 1868, six men gathered in a small room at the University of Virginia and established the ideals on which Pi Kappa Alpha has stood through the years. This humble foundation was an inspiring beginning for a long and notable history. Pi Kappa Alpha lives on in us and grows toward a still greater future.

Omicron chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha was founded here at the University on the 23rd day of October, 1891. A. Willis Robertson, T. Coleman Andrews, and Lew Burdette are among Omicron's illustrious alumni.

With the president of the student government, class officers, publication heads, members of honorary fraternities, members of the honor council, ODK, and debate, Omicron has had its share of glory.

This year a national convention was held in Florida with representatives of the more than one hundred chapters and fifty-thousand members attending. There were important classes at Florida Southern College and Miami Beach where new national officers were elected. A little work, a little play made the Florida excursion profitable and enjoyable.

With rush, Greek Week, the Founders' Day Banquet in March and the All-State PiKA Ball in April the school year was far from dull.

Pi Kappa Alpha is a national fraternity in the full sense of the word—its roots grow deeper and its branches spread.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on March 9, 1856 by Noble Leslie Devotie. The first chapter was located on the campus of the University of Alabama and had only seven members. From that humble beginning, it has grown into the largest Greek Letter Fraternity in the United States with a membership of over 108,000 men. There are 142 SAE Chapters in 46 states.

The Virginia Tau chapter of SAE was established at the University of Richmond on October 15, 1884, but lasted only two years. However, on February 4, 1938 Pi Delta Sigma, a local fraternity, was granted a charter from Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Virginia Tau once again became an active member.

The brothers of Virginia Tau enjoy a close association that binds them together in the bonds of friendship and brotherhood, working and living around the handsome lodge on fraternity row. Fall rush, Homecoming, the Founders' Day Ball, Greek Week, numerous combo parties, as well as intramural sports and contests are only a few of the events that the Brothers of SAE look forward to during the school year. We are truly proud to be called "Sons of Minerva."

Sigma Chi

Sigma Chi was founded June 28, 1855, at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Sigma Chi in 1880 had a chapter on the University of Richmond campus, Alpha Beta. The chapter's stay was short-lived since it became inactive in 1882, as a result of the school's policy towards fraternities. However, two of the chapter's initiates became leading Virginia citizens; James R. Branch became a leading stockbroker and John H. Ingram served as a prominent attorney and judge.

In September, 1955, Chi Sigma, a local fraternity, petitioning Sigma Chi fraternity, was organized at the University. Five Sigma Chi's formed the nucleus of the new group. The five men who laid the foundation for a new Sigma Chi chapter at Richmond were: Brock Matthews, Lawrence T. Berry, Kendall P. Parker, Edmund N. Moore, and Mac Christian.

On February 3, 1958, a favorable vote was received on the petition of Chi Sigma at the University of Richmond for admission to membership in the Sigma Chi fraternity. On April 12, 1958, the members of Chi Sigma were initiated as members of Epsilon Rho chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

In October of 1901, twelve men met in a dormitory room in Ryland Hall at old Richmond College. On November 1, 1901, these men founded Sigma Phi Epsilon, the only national fraternity founded at the University of Richmond. The new organization was discouraged and harassed by the chapters of the five national fraternities then on the Richmond campus, but the brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon worked steadily and by March 1902, had increased their number to twenty-one.

When the second chapter of the fraternity was established the following year, Sigma Phi Epsilon was on its way to its present standing of third largest fraternity among the 59 member groups of the National Interfraternity Conference.

As the "Mother Chapter" of Sigma Phi Epsilon, Virginia Alpha occupies a unique position within the fraternity and on the Richmond campus. In the past the chapter has done well in the intramural program, Greek Week, and other campus and fraternity activities. The highlights of the First Semester include a back to school party for actives and pledges, Homecoming, rushing and pledging, the Pledge-Active football game, and the Christmas Party. During the Second Semester, the "Brothers of the Golden Heart" have a Pledge-Active Banquet and Dance, and a retreat for self-evaluation and fraternity improvement. The Golden Heart Ball, Sigma Phi Epsilon's biggest social event, ends the year on a high note.

Theta Chi

"Theta Chi inspires true friendship . . . extols virtue, exacts harmony, and extends a helping hand to all who seek it." These words, which may be found within the time-honored Creed of Theta Chi, go far in expressing the intangible quality of brotherhood to be found within the ranks of the brothers of Omicron Chapter. True brotherhood has been the nucleus of the tradition which this chapter has been building since 1915.

During this school year the brothers of Theta Chi have shared many varied and happy experiences. These good times have ranged from a successful rushing program which netted fifteen future "Chis," to the traditional "Garter Party." Injected throughout have been intramural athletic contests, pledge projects, parties, and big weekends with the biggest being the "Dream Girl Weekend" held each year in the Spring.

In an effort to bring some extra happiness into the lives of small children Theta Chi held, for the seventeenth consecutive year, its Children's Christmas Party at which time a group of underprivileged children were treated royally.

And so another year in the life of Omicron Chapter, Theta Chi Fraternity ends. A year filled with memories never to be forgotten by the men who wear the "Serpent and Swords."

History of Athletics

In the year 1900 athletics at Richmond College were governed by the student body. Under the supervision of the General Athletic Association, football, baseball, tennis, and track were separately conducted. The Executive Committee had supreme authority and was composed of the college President, President of the Athletic Association, and manager and captains of the football and baseball teams.

The All-Round Athlete

In 1878 and 1879 football at Richmond College was a far cry from football as we know it today. The two Literary societies, Philologians and Mu Sigma Rho's organized football teams and played each other a practice game—in hopes of organizing a representative team in case a match could be arranged with a neighboring college. The "proposed" college team was to have a captain and coach elected by the two societies, whose membership comprise the membership of the Athletic Association.

Until the early 1900's the manager of the team was in charge of schedule arrangements, procuring of uniforms, tickets, transportation, hotel arrangements, etc. The first captains and managers also provided what little coaching the teams received.

At that time, from 15 to 40 men played on each side. Nobody ran with the ball, and there was no tackling. The men merely tried to advance the ball over their opponents' line by kicking it. Occasionally a player "buted" the ball with his head. There were no positions on the team—it was each man for himself.

The actual beginning of intercollegiate football at the U of R was in the fall of 1881 with R.M.C.

First mention of the presence of a pep band at the matches was in 1890. Since that time the pep band has become an old standard.

In 1900 the baseball enthusiasts were besieged by problems. There was no suitable athletic park at the University, and there was no financial backing since the Athletic Association was in debt. In desperation, the association planned a "jollification" for the benefit of the treasury, and baseball established itself with bright prospects ahead.

In 1905 Track Athletics as a branch of intercollegiate competition first appeared. Before this time the college had only held track and field events on field day. By 1940 this sport had advanced so that the team of that year was undefeated in the State of Virginia.

In 1891 the Intercollegiate Association of Southern Institutions was organized in Richmond, with Richmond College as a member. Then on Sept. 1, 1936, the University of Richmond became a member of the Southern Conference. Today athletics at the U of R are governed by the Athletic Council in cooperation with the Faculty Committee and the Director of Athletics, in compliance with the standards laid down by the "Rules Committee" of the Southern Conference.

Spider Football—1961

The University of Richmond's 1960 football team was again plagued with the age-old problem, that of being undermanned, but still did a creditable job considering the critical situation.

The Spiders began the season with only thirty participants, and by mid-campaign, the number had been cut to a traveling squad of only twenty-six. With their courageous few, Coach Edwin Merrick opposed their Southern Conference and Interleague foes with much heart and desire only to find that the all-important factor of depth was greatly needed. At one instant during the season, a Southern Conference team fielded twice as many players as did the Red and Blue; yet Richmond played them to a standstill, and the game ended in a hard fought deadlock.

Needless to say, there was a great deal of disappointment, but the Spiders did their best and can hold their heads high for a gallant effort.

Richmond was led throughout the season by seniors: Bob Buffman, John Boggs, Bob Sizer, Bob Coolbaugh, Earl Stoudt, Stu Percy, Brent Vann, Mel Rideout, George Rapp, Tom Daughtrey, Joe Pesansky, Ben Davis, and Don Christman.

High points of the season were victories over William and Mary in the Turkey Day Classic, Furman, and Davidson, plus a 7-7 tie with mighty West Virginia.

The outlook for 1961 is the brightest in years as it marks the beginning of the famed University of Richmond's four year plan. Under this financial program, the Spiders can field a squad of up to sixty men. This will give Richmond the manpower for future Southern Conference championships.

Rideout passes against William and Mary

Richmond 19 – William and Mary 0

The University of Richmond shifted their power from the air to the ground and ended what seemed to be a most disagreeable football season on a favorable note by defeating arch rivals, William and Mary, 19 to nothing at City Stadium. The victory gave the Spiders a 33 to 32 game edge in the traditional series which began back in 1898.

The Spiders had two very strong points in their favor as the game got under way. First, quarterback Mel Rideout, giving up a possible passing championship, was brilliant enough to realize that his backs could run against the William and Mary line. Secondly, Earl Stoudt returned to his position in good playing condition.

As a result the Spiders rolled for 225 yards on the ground with Stoudt accounting for 100 of them. Full-back Jim McGinnis bulled his way to pick up another 82 yards and Brent Vann knifed through the Indians for a total of 30.

After a stand-still first quarter, the Red and Blue sent McGinnis into the end zone for six. Rideout booted the conversion and the Spiders led at half time, seven to nothing.

Then, after a defensive third quarter, Rideout and Stoudt smashed over from the one and six yard lines respectively for the winning margin.

Earl Stoudt—All-Southern Conference halfback

Bob Coolbaugh—All-Southern Conference end

Richmond halfback Earl Stoudt turned in an unbelievable performance as the Spiders easily claimed their first victory of the season over the Davidson College Wildcats by the score of 35 to 6. To enumerate on Stoudt's spectacular performance, he registered 77 yards gained rushing on 15 carries; 125 yards on punt returns; 25 yards on pass interceptions; 21 on pass receptions; and 62 yards on kickoff returns for a grand total of 310 yards. He also tallied 13 of the 35 Spider points.

But it was a tremendous team effort. After the Wildcats broke the scoring ice for a six to nothing lead, Stoudt found his way ably cleared by Richmond blockers and galloped 80 yards for the score. After booting the extra point, Stoudt never found his team trailing again.

Pressing Stoudt in the point-making field day was sophomore Stu Percy who ably tallied twelve points on 15 and nine yard runs. Also figuring in the scoring were Art D'Arrigo with six points and Bob Coolbaugh and Bruce Engle with two points apiece.

Richmond 0 — Florida State 28

Richmond's Spiders, their single solid unit outmanned by the Seminoles of Florida State University, put up a stiff battle before dropping the season opener 28 to 0.

The Spiders held tightly to the three-platoon squad during the first half, but the Seminoles' reserve was just what was needed to score 28 points in the last 31 minutes.

Along with the hard defensive showing during the first half, the Spiders saw other bright spots in the passing and punting of Sophomore Mel Rideout and the running of Jim McGinnis.

Defensively, the Red and Blue was led by Ed Northrop, Bob Klinger, and Brent Vann.

Richmond 6 — Virginia Military 21

Meeting the 1959 Southern Conference Champions in their second outing, the Spiders put up a creditable first half stand but tired to a 21 to 6 loss at the precisioned hands of Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Virginia.

After the Keydets' All-Southern quarterback Howard Dyer had sneaked over from the one yard line and then had passed to end Dick Weede for an eight to nothing first quarter lead, the Spiders made their bid. UR end Art McGee pounced upon a fumble to give the Spiders possession on their own 45. With Rideout and Earl Stoudt, All-Southern halfback, knocking down the yardage, the Red and Blue tallied with Stoudt knifing over from the three. In an attempt to knot the score, the Spiders' run for the two point play failed. The score remained 8 to 6 at the half.

Dyer then drew his troops together after the second half kick-off, and the Keydets tallied twice more to make the 21 to 6 total.

Standouts in the Richmond cause were McGee, Stoudt, Rideout, Jim McGinnis, Bob Coolbaugh, Bob Buffman, and Steve Stevenson.

Richmond 6—West Virginia 6

Playing West Virginia, a Southern Conference football club they've never beaten, the Spiders put up a staunch defense to tie the 8 pt. favorite mountaineers.

Trailing 6-0, Richmond stormed 45 yards in the final minutes to tie the game. Jim McGinnis' three yard scoring plunge was set up by a brilliant pass-lateral play from Mel Rideout to Earl Stoudt to Bob Coolbaugh. A faulty snap caused Stoudt's hurried placement to sail wide.

In a game that was exciting only in the final minutes, Richmond narrowly missed its second opportunity to upset the Mounties as Johnny Boggs intercepted a pass and returned it to the WVU 33 yard line. Time ran out with the ball on the 13.

The aggressive U of R defenders were led by hard tackling Bob Sizer, who received Old Dominion back-of-the-week honors for his effort.

Richmond 12—Citadel 24

A large alumni gathering spent a dismal afternoon at City Stadium as the Citadel defeated Richmond by a 24 to 12 count.

The Citadel jumped to a 14 to 0 lead at the half after almost completely stymieing the UR offensive attack. But Richmond struck back soundly at the opening of the third quarter. After the kick-off, the Red and Blue, with quarterback Mel Rideout directing the attack, drove swiftly to the Bulldogs' 16 before Earl Stoudt broke off tackle for the tally.

Down eight points entering the final period, the Spiders found themselves again on defense, but to not much success. The Bulldogs were able to gather ten more points before Rideout could toss an eight yard aerial to Bob Coolbaugh for the final score of the day.

Stoudt, averaging 4.7 yards a carry, John Boggs, and Stevie Stevenson carried the ground load for the Spiders while Rideout completed 16 of 21 passes for 174 yards.

Richmond 0 — Virginia Tech 20

Virginia Tech's heavily favored Gobblers huffed and puffed for more than three quarters before they could finally relax in a 20 to 0 Southern Conference victory over the Richmond Spiders. Playing their most inspiring contest of the season, the spirited Spider forces held the powerful Gobblers to a mere six points going into the final five minutes of the game.

The Richmond defense was truly outstanding. The forward wall of Art McGee, Bob Coolbaugh, Joe Teefey, Bob Buffman, Bob Sizer, and Ed Northrop held the Techmen to shore yardage on the ground and forced the Gobblers' quarterbacks to throw their passes with haste.

In the backfield, Earl Stoudt again displayed his fine abilities before being put out of the tilt because of a knee injury. His seventy yard rushing and twenty-eight on pass receptions were high in the brilliant but futile league loss.

Richmond 0 — George Washington 16

A jubilant Washington crowd found their Homecoming most enjoyable as George Washington University halted the Spiders' "I" formation and then rolled to an impressive 16 to 0 victory. As in the past Spider outings, the Colonials took the second half advantage over the undermanned Spiders to secure the win.

Only a field goal by GW's Warren Corbin separated the two teams at the end of the second quarter. But the superior Colonial depth was shown as they tallied 13 additional points in the second half.

Because of the loss of All-Southern halfback, Earl Stoudt, the Red and Blue switched to the "I" formation but found that the Colonials would give only 49 yards rushing. Again though, quarterbacks Mel Rideout and Dick Cure were able to fill the Capital City's sky with Spider aerials.

Richmond 35 – Furman 28

University of Richmond broke back into the winner's circle after a two week absence by downing Furman 35 to 28 in a wild, high scoring contest. After building up a 27 to 0 third quarter lead, the tiring Spiders had only to coast to victory even though the last 17 minutes belonged to the Hurricanes.

Mel Rideout responded beautifully to the Richmond chant for victory as he personally had a hand in securing 29 points of the total Spider production. He completed 13 of 19 aerials for 176 yards in the air including three touchdown passes. The field general then ran six yards for a score, kicked an extra point, and passed to end Bob Coolbaugh for two conversions. This performance made him the unanimous choice for Southern Conference Player of the Week.

Rideout found favor in a second target to relieve Coolbaugh as he hit Stu Percy on 21 and 28 yard touchdown tosses. Jim McGinnis also figured in the Spider scoring with a two yard plunge to begin the final half.

Brent Vann, standing in beautifully for the injured Earl Stoudt, chalked up 101 yards in 14 carries. McGinnis gathered in 61, while Percy accounted for 51 yards.

Richmond 7 – East Carolina 22

East Carolina caught the Spiders napping and defeated the Southern Conference foe 22 to 7 in a weak offensive and defensive battle. The Pirates called on the talents of All North Stater, Glenn Bass to deflate the Red and Blue's ego and help ECC's chances for admittance into the Southern Conference in the near future.

The Pirates jumped into an early lead by making a 35 yard field goal. Immediately, the Spiders responded as Mel Rideout scored from the one and then kicked the extra point.

But this was not enough. Bass then began his one-man act with a 95 yard kick-off return and a 38 yard pass reception, both for touchdowns.

Brent Vann's 66 yards rushing and Dick Huffman's brilliant defensive game gave the Spiders a little for which to smile.

COACH FRED HARDY
CAPTAIN LYNN BRYCE

The University of Richmond Harriers, under the direction of Coach Fred Hardy, paced creditably through a rather tough season, suffering mainly from lack of depth caused by the return of few lettermen. However, there were bright spots and a good look at future prospects.

Sophomore Bill Lumpkin paced the Spiders over the 4.2 mile course and should be a champion with a little more experience.

Also contributing significantly to the squad were Dave Reid, Rusty Wayland, Ken Cousins, Bill Woolwine, and Captain Lynn Bryce.

The University of Richmond Rifle Team has high hopes for next season after a very good 1960 season. With a top group of freshmen moving up, the riflemen should surpass the records turned in this year. The 1960 season saw the Spiders place high in the conference and turn in excellent performances in dual meets.

The high scoring men on this year's team were Frank Hanenkrat, Bob Watkins, Bob Myers, Allan Yung, and Judson Booker.

Coached ably by Sergeant Koonce, the Spider Rifle team is well respected as one of the finest in intercollegiate circles.

The Westhampton Hockey Team was started at Westhampton College in 1920. Although Westhampton had their first game scheduled against Sweet Briar in 1919 it could not be played because of snow. It was the first college in Virginia to have a hockey team.

With Elaine Eaton as captain and Josie Rogers as manager, the 1960 team had a very active season.

Many of the team members gained experience at summer hockey camp, where they learned the skills taught by professionals.

Four members of the squad won places on the Tidewater Field Hockey Team. Elaine Eaton, Margaret Denmon, and Sandy Weeks made the first team and Sara Ruschhaupt placed on the second team.

'60-'61 Basketball

The University of Richmond's basketball team registered a losing season during the 1960-61 campaign. The Spiders came out on the winning end of only nine of 23 starts. But there were many rarities during the season to give these Les Hooker coached cagers a great deal of respect from area opponents and fans.

First, the squad, whose biggest starter was only six feet, five inches tall, overcame their smallness with a brilliant and undying spirit in most every outing to give every opponent a top notch struggle. It was the kind of hustle and drive that brought throngs of spectators to the Arena even if the Spiders were solely the underdogs.

Second, for the first time in the tourney's seven year history, the Spiders won their invitational Christmas tournament by topping the century mark in both outings.

Third, there was no one great or outstanding individual on the quint. It was, for the first time in several years, a well balanced squad. If a member of the team found that his shooting was cold, he would pass to a teammate who would carry on the offensive attack.

The Spiders were quite interesting to watch and follow. With a little more height and depth and a few more breaks, the University of Richmond cagers could have been among the conference's best.

Danny Higgins, the little Spider field general found himself the most honored person on the team. He was named to the second team All Southern and Big Five squads.

Higgins was also chosen as the Most Valuable Player in the Richmond Invitational Tourney and selected to represent the Southern Conference in the SC-ACC all star game.

Tom Booker and Lee O'Bryan were placed on the All Big Five team.

The Spiders got off on the wrong foot at the beginning of the season by dropping their first two outings to Southern Conference foes, George Washington, the league champions, and potent Citadel. In both contests, the Spiders lost the battle of the boards as the Colonials from G. W. defeated them 75 to 67, and the Bulldogs receiving the win by a 92 to 78 count.

Then the Spiders bounced into the winning column by dumping Washington and Lee by an impressive 80 to 51 score. Lee O'Bryan was the Spider star as he brilliantly accounted for 17 points and 20 rebounds. Holding a 22 point half time advantage, Coach Hooker's reserves saw plenty of action.

But the Red and Blues triumph happiness was to be short lived as they traveled to Blacksburg only to fall to the Virginia Tech Gobblers by a score of 76 to 54. The Spiders not only lost the contest, but co-captain Red Booker was sidelined due to a hip injury.

Returning to the Arena, the Spiders, led ably by Danny Higgins (21 points), George Grodzicki (17 points and 17 rebounds), and O'Bryan (18 points), defeated the favored Virginia Cavaliers, 80 to 68. Higgins was also commended on his tremendous showing as he held UVA's All Starter, Tony Laquintano to a mere 16 points—far below his average.

On the road, the Spiders showed their determination before losing a 75-72 verdict to powerful West Virginia University in the last minutes of the contest. O'Bryan again was the leading scorer with 22; thus surpassing the Mountaineers' All-American, Rod Thorn, by six tallies.

Once again at home, the Spiders stormed from behind to edge league foe, Furman, 76 to 74, in an action packed contest. Trailing by as many as 11 points during the second half, the UR cagers got a seven point surge in the final minutes from Higgins to clinch the win.

As the Christmas holidays got into full swing, the Spiders followed the crowd as they reached the hundred point production area in the outings of the Richmond Invitational Tourney held at the Arena. It was the first championship for the Spiders in seven years, and scrappy guard Danny Higgins was named the outstanding player on the court. Lee O'Bryan and Tom Booker received berths on the All-tourney quint.

The Spiders opened their attack by downing a stubborn Virginia Military Institute team, 100 to 90. Hitting an average 60.3 per cent, the Red and Blue received 27 and 26 point offerings from the talents of O'Bryan and Higgins respectively.

Four times in the last rounds but never the winner, Coach Hooker led his hoopsters in to the final against Jeff Cohen and company of William and Mary College. In the first time that the Spiders had hit back to back century marks since 1954, they dumped the taller Indians by an impressive and spirited 101 to 87 championship score. Higgins banged in 28 points followed by O'Bryan with 17 and Booker contributing 23 tallies.

The following three of four campaigns saw the Spiders fall before the taller adversaries in the conference. William and Mary revenged the tourney loss, 63 to 60, behind the 30-point scoring of Cohen. The Citadel again took the count over the Spiders with a 89 to 80 come-from-behind victory. Then, in an overtime period, Furman, behind the scoring of Tom Conard and Jerry Smith, edged the Richmond squad, 84 to 81.

The UR reply came loud and clear as they defeated V. M. I., 69 to 62, Davidson, 83 to 78, and Virginia Tech, 81 to 79. Higgins tallied two insurance baskets to assure the Spiders of the SC victory over the spirited Keydets from Lexington. Reserve center Jerry Sklar came off the Spider bench to give Richmond the added punch needed for the victory over the mighty Gobblers from Virginia Tech. It was a night to behold for the Spider fans as the Richmond cagers gave it their all. Lee O'Bryan tossed in the last ten points of the game and contributed the game winning tap-in. As a result, the Arena in hysteria. The heroes were lifted to the shoulders of the fans. The nets were cut in a style befitting a national championship team. It was a fine tribute to the hustling Spiders.

This glory was short lived as the Spiders were defeated by Memphis State, Loyola of the South, and West Virginia.

Bouncing back, the Red and Blue easily beat Davidson, 90 to 77. O'Bryan and Booker turned in twin performances of 27 points. Higgins and Grodzicki helped the cause with 14 and ten tallies respectively.

Disaster struck in the final three outings of the regular season as the Spiders were out scored by George Washington, 106 to 78, V. M. I., 78 to 75, and William and Mary, 105 to 84. The lone bright spot in these three contests was the vast improvement of forward Mac Dirom, who turned in high point showings against the Keydets from Lexington and William and Mary's Indians.

Seeded sixth in the SC tourney, the Spiders entered competition against the third ranked team, the Citadel. Spider fans were pleased with the announcement that co-captain Lee O'Bryan was to return to the squad after a bout with the flu.

The Spiders jumped to an early 20-12 lead and held tight at the half with a six point advantage. 'Red' Booker accounted for ten, Grodzicki had nine, and Higgins tossed in 12 points during this all-Richmond period.

A dry spell was hit during the second half. The Red and Blue's shooting percentage was only 26.4 the latter half after a blazing 42.9 percentage from the floor during their lead. With the score tied at 47 to 47, the Citadel switched to a pressing zone to almost completely contain the Spiders. During this time the Richmond squad could deliver only one field goal and one free throw while the Bulldogs and Gary Daniels tallied 12 needed points.

Three times the Spiders narrowed the score to two separating points, but Daniels clinched the Citadel's victory with two free throws with six seconds remaining on the Arena clock.

Booker and Grodzicki are the high men for the Spiders with 16 points. Higgins made 15 and the ailing but determined O'Bryan contributed seven in the Spiders' last outing of the year.

The Westhampton College basketball team, coached by Augusta Chapman, emerged undefeated for the second straight year with a 61-44 victory over Longwood College. Their over-all record was 7 wins and 0 losses. The four first team forwards, Janet Harwood, Barbara Wilkie, Marsha Sullivan, and Dixie Hargrave scored a total of 368 points with Barbara Wilke leading the scoring with 129 points. The guards, Sally Spiller, Sandy Weeks, Margaret Denman, and Frances Mayer, did an outstanding job in holding our opponents to 261 points.

The second team was also undefeated this year with a 6-0 record, holding a record that we hope will be maintained in the future.

Baseball — 1961

Coach Mac Pitt enters his twenty-seventh year as head mentor of the University of Richmond baseball team and again appears to have developed one of the top teams on the East Coast. The "Silver Fox", as Pitt is known in baseball circles, has compiled a 26 year record of 304 wins and 154 losses, 13 State titles, and four Southern Conference crowns. He considers this year's nine to be a hard working group with championship qualities.

Leading the squad for the 1961 season will be Senior co-captains, Doug Martin and Charlie Revere. Martin is a top base runner and glove man, while Revere is probably the Southern Conference's most outstanding pitcher.

The remainder of the squad has a total of four letterwinners of its nineteen members. They are Dick Haymore, the team's leading hitter and short-stop; John Boggs, slugging right fielder; Tom Booker, the left fielder; and first baseman and pitcher, Mel Rideout.

Completing the roster are Charles Cloe, first base; Charley Franzman, second base; Lewis Armistead and Billy Nix, third base; Jim Sprouse, shortstop; catchers Brent Vann, Ron Ridenhour, and Don Falls; and outfield prospects, Jim McClung, Bobby Stewart, and Rucker Burnette. Leslie Goode, John Clayton and Boggs back Revere and Rideout on the mound.

Men's Tennis

Boasting three outstanding returning lettermen, the 1961 tennis team should prove to be a definite contender for a top Southern Conference position. With the addition of several good newcomers plus two of 1960's better freshmen, the Spiders' netmen will show a well balanced attack with the first eight members of the squad a constant threat to their opponents.

Of the veterans, Senior Ray Kee will act as Captain and play the number two position. He will be strongly flanked by number one man Robin Shervette and Brad Gunter who will hold down the number three spot.

Women's Tennis

The Westhampton Tennis Team, under the leadership of Miss Oosthoek, is looking forward to another successful season. Returning letter winners from last years undefeated team are Marsha Sullivan, Kay Koontz, and Grace Brinkley. Matches have been scheduled with R.P.I., William and Mary, Sweet Briar, Mary Washington, St. Catherine's, and Longwood.

Also, this year two representatives will be sent to the Middle Atlantic Tournament which will be held at Mary Baldwin College on May 11, 12, and 13.

KEN COUSINS AND DAVID REID

Track and Field

With only one returning Letterman, Coach Fred Hardy's Spider Thinclads will be not only outmanned but almost entirely unexperienced for the 1961 season. At present there are only twelve participants on the squad, but all of these men are capable of first place finishes.

One of the brightest spots on the team is Southern Conference Indoor Shot Champion, Bell Ventura, who also seems to have the ability to take the outdoor title. Ventura has also recorded throws of 197 feet with the javelin and 120+ with the discus. He will definitely be in contention for these titles during the Southern Conference Meet to be held in May. Behind Ventura are Tom Daughtrey and Jack Yaffa.

Sophomore George Rapp, if he regains his freshman form, will press Conference sprinters in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Competing in the 220 and 440, Al Millar also seems to be a top contender.

Rounding out the team are Kenny Cousins, one of the league's finest hurdlers; John Vaughn, half miler; Jim Halley, hurdler; high jumpers, Ted Hyneck and George Grodzicki; miler, Bill Woolwine; and David Rutherford in the pole vault.

If support is acquired to back the competitors, the University of Richmond could dominate the Southern Conference.

Golf

Under the able direction of Coach William B. Guthrie, the veteran University of Richmond Golf team will pose rugged competition for conference and inter-conference foes. After a somewhat disappointing 1960 season, the Spider golfer may have gained the necessary experience to raise to the position of the best in the Southern Conference.

Returning to again lead the Red and Blue will be lettermen Larry Dixon, who will captain the squad;

Robert Nunnally; Bob Carmines; Lou Lacy, and Punkie Lumpkin. Two promising newcomers will press the veterans for top position and strengthen the squad. They are sophomores Mac Dirom and former Mid-Atlantic junior champion, Bus Garnett.

With such a well balanced 1961 team, the Spider golfers should easily finish high in the Southern Conference Tournament to be held in Richmond on May 8-10.

The team looks forward to a successful season and to serve as hostess for the Virginia Women's Lacrosse Tournament to be held on May 13. Other schools participating in the tournament will be Sweet Briar, William and Mary, and Hollins.

Class Hockey

Class teams entered the sports life of Westhampton when the college moved to its present site. Started because of the large number of girls interested in sports, the class teams have become a beloved tradition. The class competition has helped maintain class spirit and a tie between the classes.

This year the freshmen and seniors tied for first place in the first team hockey tournament. Ann Mason captained the senior team and Judy Francis led the freshmen. The odd team won the even-odd match.

The seniors captained by Mildred Tierney also won first place in the basketball tournaments. The sophomores led by Judy Barlow won second place. The odds again won the even-odd match.

The backbone of the morale squad, the members of the team put forth every effort to make each contest a success. This year the squad has been especially active, holding Pep Rallies, and a Bonfire which was a great success.

Westhampton Cheerleaders

On the scene at every class competition are the Westhampton Cheerleaders spurring their teams on to victory, these peppy co-eds are clad in the traditional blue skirts and Westhampton sweaters. Each class has a squad for interclass rivalry. Through the efforts of these girls class spirit and enthusiasm are fostered.

Westhampton Athletic Association

The Athletic Association of Westhampton is composed of the entire student body and functions primarily to encourage sportsmanship, enthusiasm, and cooperation among the students.

Various activities are sponsored by the Athletic Association throughout the year, to meet the needs and interests of the students. Among these are the picnic for new students in Orientation Week; the Snow Ball, the annual Christmas Dance, the Song Contest; the A. A. Banquet and the numerous sports activities. The A. A. Banquet in May, at which letters are awarded and blazer winners announced, is the climax of the year's activities.

Leadership and sportsmanship are encouraged and promoted through varsity and intramural competition in hockey, basketball, track, tennis and archery.

The seal winners, announced at Moving-Up Chapel, were Luigi DeCosta and Betty Pritchett. At the Athletic Banquet, held May 17, 1961, Westhampton Blazers were presented to Margaret Denman and Barbara Wilkie, each letter winners in three sports.

Homecoming

From her humble beginnings as "The Dunlora Academy" in 1830, the University of Richmond under the guiding influence of many strong hands has progressed and expanded, reaching the position which she now holds. In 1840, when the college asked for a charter, Richmond required that a college of liberal arts be set up rather than just a Baptist seminary. This charter was for "a seminary of learning for the instruction of youth in the various branches of science and literature, the useful arts and the learned and foreign languages . . ." Dr. Ryland, the school's first president, set the standards for high scholarship and for love of truth which have always been identified with the college. These standards have been cherished and upheld by each person connected with the school. Thus we see how a fine blending of solid background, Christian character, and a strong desire for the perpetuation of learning has produced our Alma Mater, the University of Richmond. The 1961 WEB has attempted to give a pictorial view of these historic moments, and with a fond backwards glance at the . . .

days gone by, whereupon we arrive at...

The Web Beauty 1961

The Staff of THE 1961 WEB takes pleasure in presenting the winner of the annual WEB Beauty contest. This year we were fortunate to have Mr. Les Elgart, who played for Fall Openings, select the Beauty.

Every year Westhampton students choose ten candidates from the senior class at Westhampton. Richmond College votes for five of these ten candidates. Then an honorary judge picks the winner.
